If you find it hard to resist the call of the seas, the lure of the depths and the desire to glimpse the world's most beautiful reefs; if you cannot wait to visit Chole Wall in Tanzania or the Cocos Island marine reserve in Costa Rica, there can only be one watch for you: the Tarpoon Dive. With its eye-catching, bold silhouette, this is a model which oozes style and a pinch of verve, such as the nautical flag placed at 6 o'clock. The case is inspired by classic diving watches and features a large-size crown. It has been designed to withstand depths of up to 200 metres and is fitted with an upper bezel which turns in both directions. The reference to the diving world does not end there. The silicone strap, available in black or navy blue, features an embossed diving scale which makes it unique of its kind. Then there is the dial, the undisputed protagonist in deep-sea diving. The luminous indices marked in different shades stand out, including lime green and coral. This makes them easy to read even at great depths or when visibility is poor.
